

Scuba Club Dive Resort Cozumel, Mexico

September 1 – 8, 2012

Experience some of the best diving in Mexico with us at Scuba Club Cozumel, an ocean-side resort built for divers where each room has air conditioning, tiled floor, private terrace, and refrigerator. If you don't like crowds, don't worry; the resort is outside of the hustle and bustle of San Miguel. If you like nightlife, it's only a short walk into town. After a day of unforgettable diving, you can kick back in a hammock and watch a spectacular sunset. Our trip leader typically guides an optional moped tour of the Island including exploring the largely undeveloped windward coast. The resort can arrange trips to some of the Mayan ruins on the island and also hosts an outside cook-out / fiesta for our group.

Diving in Cozumel is wonderful. Drifting along with the current, you'll enjoy great water clarity highlighting large coral formations that thrive in the currents and host a wide variety of colorful fish, such as splendid toadfish, angelfish, parrotfish, and triggerfish. It's not uncommon to be swimming alongside a turtle, eel, or stingray. You will generally be drift diving from a boat that follows your group and picks up each diver as they surface. Going with the flow, this style of diving allows you to cover a great deal of reef terrain while enjoying the Islands fabulous variety of sea life.

Scuba Club has several well designed and outfitted dive boats that depart from right in front of your room. Our group will have its own boat and can request its own dive sites. Most of them are close, so you'll be back in time for lunch. You can also just walk-in for a macro oriented dive day or night.

Your group leader will be Water World instructor Arnie Weksler so you can finish your Open Water dives, get your Advanced Open Water, complete specialty certifications for Master Diver, or just relax and enjoy the dive.
